Introduction

The art of feeding, watering and entertaining business contacts has been central to generating work and cementing relationships for time immemorial. “Breaking bread”, “Wedding breakfast” “State banquet” and even “Finger in the pie” are all English food-related idioms that have relationships, politics, quid pro quo and business at their very heart. In many cultures, food is the centre point of daily activity.

I am delighted to launch the inaugural Nexia Dining guide to help the savvy international business traveller ensure that they have the best opportunity to make an impression with a prospective client or indeed an old business relationship. The guide is not exhaustive but a well curated list, by Nexia members for Nexia members, to provide better local recommendations than Trip Advisor or Google. The cities in this guide have been chosen based, in the main part, on their ranking in The Global Financial Centres Index (September 2023), with a cross reference of regional diversity and Nexia memberships. Due to the scale of the guide, we purposefully did not reach out to every Nexia member for their opinions. For that we apologise but it was necessary to get this project off the ground.

We would very much like to thank all the firms and individuals who took the time to provide their well trodden local recommendations. We could not have done it without your local expertise! To see all Nexia member firms in a particular country, please do use the link here.

Having said the above, we hope to create a 2025 version next year and so, if there are any intrepid gastronomes taking the time to read this introduction, please feel free to reach out to me or Nexia marketing so we can expand and cover your city, your country and/or your region in the next edition.

As an aside, all restaurants were active and open as of January 2024, and so we hope that will continue throughout the year.

All that is left for me to say is: Eat, Drink and Entertain. We are Nexia!

With kind regards

Robert Hazelton
